

Celebrating Ceylon Tea - CONTENT DIRECTORY - by Gail Gastelu

In case you have not yet noticed, I am fairly certain that Ceylon tea has stolen my heart! It truly is "Pure Enchantment in a Cup." Sri Lanka and every bit of its beauty, charm, and grace embody the tea industry and its people. If you have been following our Tale, you know that The Tea House Times is on a mission to help people in the USA learn more about Ceylon tea and how special it is while celebrating right alongside the country of Sri Lanka as they make plans to recognize the 150th Anniversary of Ceylon tea around the world.

What was I thinking when I said I would publish perhaps one article per month from January through the planned celebrations this August? As I write this, two months have passed since my return from Sri Lanka and more than 25 things have been published by The Tea House Times online and in print. Yes, heart stolen for sure! All I seem to do is eat, sleep, breathe, think about, write about, talk about Ceylon tea. Deservedly so....it is about time someone paid a little more attention to Ceylon tea and helping more people to understand its specialty and unique taste and cleanliness!! CLEAN, yes. Discover why it is considered the cleanest tea by reading more about it in our May/June issue (available mid/late April).

CONTENT DIRECTORY - If we keep this pace, it will be impossible for people to follow along via each different area of our coverage in print, online, in blogs, in various other places on the internet, etc. So, I have created one stop shopping so to speak - one landing place to find all of our coverage - to make it easier to follow along. Find our Tale of Ceylon Tea Directory at the link below: (old link inactive) Search our redesigned website for info.

There are plenty of additional facts and volumes of information yet to be shared as well as the personal stories of our adventures as told by myself and Linda Villano. Please continue to follow along and discover why we are so enamored by this place, this tea! CEYLON TEA!! Personally, I cannot wait to tell you more about my day plucking tea at Lumbini. More soon! Thanks for following along.
